

INDO-CHINA

cost The of collection by Chinese who pick up the of rice in their junks, as they go the has also contributed to the lack of standardization* is a hard-working farmer, and rice-patience, A level often centimetres' of be in the rice-fields for a hundred An supply is the secret of success, and not the of the is most elementary. The feet of the and are in this respect than the plough.
At the of hard is required for a short period on the part of Even the children participate, and work must be day and Eight. This but intensive labour is well to the of cultivation and to the structure of Anna-It also machines have not been successful in The very of the crop means that rice will probably be by native family labour.
A of the rice of Aimam and Tonkin shows that not the French conquest, and that bant tla «f»rtatioH. This is caused by the of the There is not enough rice to asthe minimum per person. Only in 1msincreased, and even there it was more 10 to 1900 to 1930, despite all the efforts mmIt has rather, enterprises like rubber
 by aa in technical knowledge, that not i years. Purely native crops have The to increase rice product»a WAS by i rise in die of which was not inune-by an in tie of living. The result has been intte
1st This power of the natives » quality of native for products other than rice

The 10 ID a head. There has net a the dM not make efforts to to therice cit>p* The adnunistratba has lack erf apkad the necessity cxM>rdimti00.

not not too fragfaeiitoy, but This is the inevitable ta6